Didsbury Gets Special Mention

Rev. J. M. Fawcett brought to our attention the book "Beautiful Canada" by Vernon Quinn, in which Didsbury comes in for special mention. In fact it is the only town between Calgary and Edmonton which receives any mention in the book.

In his chapter on "Lovely Alberta," the writer has the following to say of our town:

"A refreshing little town lies on the direct railroad between Edmonton and Calgary. This is Didsbury, which with its population of 900, contains 900 boosters. But certainly there is reason for boasting of this enterprising centre of a large mixed farming community. Up-to-date stores, pretentious brick buildings, excellent streets and electric lights are its pride. To these might be added the wholehearted cordiality with which it greets the stranger, and an enthusiasm and optimism that makes one feel the better for having been there."

"Beautiful Canada" is a well illustrated book which tells of all the beauty spots in Canada from East to West and is published by Rosset and Dunlap of New York.

Legion Amateur Contest, Friday, November 10th

The Didsbury branch of the Canadian Legion is sponsoring an Amateur contest on Friday, November 10 in the Opera House at 8:15 p.m.

Prizes will be given for instrumental and vocal solos; choruses, quartettes, trios, duets, recitations, tap dancing, plays, etc.

There will be a special prize for the best patriotic number.

Proceeds will be given to the Red Cross Society and other wartime organizations. There will be a dance after the contest.

Entries will be received by Miss Joyce Morgan at the Post Office.

Didsbury School Win Track Meet Cup.

The Didsbury School Athletes came home with the Cup from the Rosebud Inter-school Track Meet, held at Bowden last Thursday.

Didsbury were consistent winners in all divisions of the meet and held a substantial lead over second-place Olds without using their bonus of 50 points. They earned 235, which with their bonus, gave them a total of 285.

Three Didsbury entrants, Marguerite Fisher, Mary McFarquhar and John Holub, were medal winners in their respective divisions.

This is the first time Didsbury has won the cup since 1924, but the excellent showing made this year by students in the lower grades, Didsbury should make a good showing during the next few years.

Following is a summary of Didsbury's record at the meet:

Heavy Snow Blocks Roads

The heavy snow and blizzard on Monday afternoon disrupted motor traffic and a number of farmers were stranded in town, the roads both east and west being blocked.

The board of the Olds School Division met during the day and all the members were stormbound in town overnight.

Fifteen cars were stuck between the highway and town and it was reported that 200 cars were stranded on the highway to Calgary.

Wins Prize in Searle Essay Contest

Kenneth Burns, a young farmer who lives east of Didsbury, was successful in being placed fourth in the Searle $1,000 Farmer's Essay Competition which was open to all farmers in the prairie provinces, and he was awarded a prize of $40.00.

The idea of the competition was that some farmers might be using certain methods in their farming practices which could be used advantageously by other farmers. Accordingly in April, 1939, Mr. A. L. Searle, of the Searle Grain Co., offered $1,000.00 for an essay competition so that farmers might be encouraged to describe practices or methods which they were using and which they found either improved the quality of their crop or reduced their cost of crop production.

We congratulate Mr. Burns on his enterprise in entering the contest and on the success he achieved.

Horseshoes in Stooks Damage Threshing Machine

Dodd Bros., who farm the home place of the Olds Development Co. at the Reed Ranch, 12 miles east of Olds, have had their threshing machine damaged ten times during the short period they have been able to thresh this fall.

The damage has been done by someone unknown putting horseshoes and other pieces of iron in the bundles. It would be practically impossible to take every bundle apart to see if it contained an old horseshoe or piece of iron, and when a bundle containing one of these missiles is fed into the separator, cylinder teeth are broken, causing expense and delay.

We have many transients in this part of the country who would do anything. The gang that butchered the pure-bred milch cow here two weeks ago and took only a rib roast out of the carcass, are of the type responsible for plenty of dirty work.—Olds Gazette.

If you have not registered—DO IT NOW!

Open Treasury Branch Agency

An agency of the Treasury Branch operated by the Alberta Social Credit Government has been opened at Scott's Harness Shop and will be open for business there every Monday and Tuesday.

Transfer of the Treasury Branch now operating in Bowden to the town of Olds, is announced by government officials. A sub-branch will remain in Bowden as a convenience to customers at that point. Transferring of the main business was found necessary in order to centralize the office properly in the area served, officials stated.

Red Cross Notes.

The finance committee is making arrangements for the drive for funds to start on November 13. Teams will be organized and it is planned to call on every person in the district.

It is stated that there will be no Patriotic Fund such as was instituted during the last war. This phase of the work will be carried on by the Red Cross Society.

A limited supply of knitting wool has been received from the Calgary headquarters. Conveners of rural work groups would be well advised to make known their requirements to the secretary.

Sources Of Peril

Great as have been the results of the campaign against tuberculosis in the Dominion and particularly in Western Canada, there are two potential sources of infection which require careful watching, if the gains which have been made in the past few years are to be consolidated, maintained and extended.

That first the curative methods and later the preventive precautions which have been adopted in recent years to curb this great menace have brought remarkable rewards in general improvement of the health of westerners and in reduction of the incidence of this specific disease is well known. The story has oft been told with indisputable figures and facts to substantiate it.

It will suffice to state here that the tuberculosis death rate in Canada has dropped from 87.6 per 100,000 in 1921 to 59.9 in 1937 and for Saskatchewan, which boasts the lowest death rate from this cause of any province in the Dominion, it has declined from 43 per 100,000 in 1921 to 31.5 in 1937 and in the latter year "one-third of the deaths were among Indians".

Much of this result can properly be attributed to improved technique in treating victims of the disease and as much or more to the inspections which are being made regularly in the schools and other focal points of potential infection as part of the program of prevention which is now occupying the vanguard post in the battle against tuberculosis.

A Dangerous Source

A moment ago it was pointed out that one-third of the deaths from the white plague in Saskatchewan in 1937 were among Indians and this gives a clue to one of the two most dangerous sources of infection yet extant. The other is the immigrant, newcomers to the country, some of whom have come from countries where tuberculosis is rife and where adequate steps to combat the disease on the scale adopted in Canada have not yet been put into effect.

Not only is there a danger that the tubercle-riddled Indian may spread—and, in fact, does spread the scourge among his fellow countrymen, but he is a source of danger to the white people with whom he associates. Equally dangerous is the immigrant from some of the European countries, not only to those of his own nationality with whom he may colonize, but equally so to those who are established Canadians by birth or long residence with whom he comes in contact and transacts business.

While the incidence of tuberculosis among Indians has shown a substantial decline since the white man first exposed the red man to its ravages, the fact that one-third of the victims of this disease in one of the provinces was confined to a group forming an infinitesimally small percentage of the entire population, indicates the necessity for special care to substantially reduce the hazard in this quarter, not only for the sake of the Indians themselves, but also to prevent them from becoming a source of reinfection among the "whites".

Recounting the history of the disease among the Indians in the west, Christian Smith, in a series of articles written as a contribution to the work of the Saskatchewan Anti-Tuberculosis League, recently declared that more than one quarter of the Indians of the first generation affected by the epidemic died. The second generation sustained a loss of one-third, but the third generation is showing a much better record.

"Back in 1900," said Mr. Smith, "tuberculosis was so common in Indian boarding schools that 20 per cent. of the pupils around the Qu'Appelle Valley in Saskatchewan had tuberculous glands, not to mention other forms of the disease. In 1921, however, only seven per cent. had tuberculous glands. In 1927 it had dwindled to three per cent. and last year (1937) of 1,511 pupils who were examined in the boarding schools of Saskatchewan only 26 cases of active tuberculosis of all forms were found, which is equal to a rate of 1.32 per cent."

Should Be Extended

The lowered incidence of the disease among the Indians during the period from the occupancy of the territory by the "whites" to 1930 is largely attributed by the same writer to the application of the law of "survival of the fittest." Since that time further results have been secured in a health unit comprising two Indian reserves in Saskatchewan, established as such by the federal government. In this health unit since 1930 the death rate from T.B. has declined from 817 to 390 per 100,000. To what extent this can be attributed to the continued operation of the law of survival of the fittest or to the application of health laws and principles, it is yet too early to say.

The work among the white population and the experiment being conducted on the two Indian reservations referred to, combined with the still comparatively high incidence of the disease among Western Indians indicates the necessity for prosecuting this work with increased vigor and the advisability of its extension to the entire Indian population in the west with the prospect that in time the danger of infection among the Indians can be reduced to that among the white population.

The accuracy of a valve grinding job can be ascertained by dropping the valve into its seat. If it fails to bounce, improper grinding is indicated, since one that seats properly always will bounce back.

Classed As Hard Laborers

Foreign newspaper correspondents raised no objection when they were told the German Government had classified them as "hard labourers." This meant their weekly meat supply had been doubled, giving them slightly more than two pounds. Hard laborers under the ration system get twice as much meat as white collar workers.

Atomic Structure

Smallest Known Neutral Particle Of Matter Has Been Measured

With the help of a ponderous, 75-ton laboratory instrument, two scientists have measured the magnetic strength of the smallest known neutral particle of matter, the neutron.

The measurement is considered of fundamental importance in the study of atomic structure. It may help physicists to learn about how matter is formed.

Prof. Felix Bloch of Sanford University and Prof. Luis Alvarez of the University of California, who collaborated in the work, have announced the measurement as 1.93 "nuclear magnetons."

To reduce the term to ordinary dimensions they calculated it would take 1,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 (one trillion trillion) neutrons to equal the strength of a small horseshoe magnet.

Neutrons are themselves little magnets. Together with protons, particles of about the same weight, they make up the nuclei, or cores, of all atoms.

Farewell Joke

Clown Bequeaths Top Hat That Contained A Fortune

Gilberto Venturini, one of Italy's most famous clowns, played a farewell joke on his son by bequeathing to him his top hat.

When the son dashed the hat to the ground in anger, a paper fell out. It was a deposit receipt for 30,000 lire ($350) in the son's name.

Venturini has opened a restaurant, where he preserves the top hat in a glass case.

Fire Victims

People Should Teach Children The Principles Of Fire Prevention

Last year the Fire Demon numbered among his victims in Canada 263 men, women and children. In 1937, 105 children lost their lives by fire, while in 1938, 118 children's lives were claimed. This is a staggering admission and the responsibility for such tragedies can in many cases be laid directly to the negligence of parents who far too often leave their helpless little ones alone in the house while they visit neighbours or go to a show. These holocausts frequently occur in rural districts where neighbours are long distances away and the parents are unable to reach their burning home in time to save their children from a horrible death.

Every parent should realize that it is his duty to teach his children the principles of fire prevention. They should not be allowed to play with fire, matches should be kept out of their reach and the playing with celluloid toys should be discouraged. By a strict adherence to the use of common sense, parents can thus save themselves the bitter anguish and life-long regret which must be ever present when a child perishes by their neglect.

Scheme Did Not Work

Partnership In Harlem Was Dissolved On 50-50 Basis

There was nothing half way about the manner in which Herbert L. Bruce dissolved his nine-year partnership with Miles Duncan, co-owner of a popular Harlem restaurant.

Angry after a political disagreement with his Republican partner, Bruce, Tammany Hall's only Negro district leader, called in 10 men to help him remove his share of the restaurant property.

They divided the tables and chairs equally, then sawed a counter in half and similarly partitioned a mirror, a straw hat—even a roast chicken on a platter waiting to be served.

Olds Hospital Debenture Loan Turned Down.

A committee of the Olds town council motored to Edmonton on Thursday last to interview the Board of Public Utility Commissioners and the Provincial Treasurer, regarding the borrowing of $30,000.00 for the building of a new hospital at Olds.

It is necessary to secure the approval of the Provincial government before application can be made to the Federal government for the loan of this money, which is available for certain projects at 2 per cent. interest per annum.

It was pointed out to the delegation that the town of Olds expected to borrow the $30,000 and then turn it over to the Hospital Board to spend in building a new hospital. This appears contrary to the Municipal Improvements Assistance Act, whereby the town does not control spending of sums borrowed from the Dominion government. It was also pointed out that the town of Olds could not legally give security on the revenue from the hospital and that the hospital board did not have the authority under the agreement between the municipal districts of Westerdale, Mountain View and the town of Olds, as passed by the provincial legislature.

Money can only be loaned for self-liquidating projects, and the Government requires security on revenue of the project.

For this reason the attorney-general's department in Edmonton stated that they could not approve of the application as being within the scope of the Act.

Didsbury is in the same position as Olds in regard to borrowing money for building a hospital, and the town secretary received the same decision from the Government some months ago.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE

Director "Crop Testing Plan"

Viscount Gort, Commander-in-chief of the British Army in France, has just expressed himself that men and not machines will win the war.

This is in keeping with the conviction of all the great commanders of the past; and military history reveals clearly that it was the infantryman with his bayonet, or the ancient foot soldier with his sword, who finally won battles. War machines such as armored cars, tanks and aircraft all, of course, now render valuable help, but it is still the foot soldier who will decide the final issue.

But just as war machines require fuel in the shape of good oil, so will Viscount Gort's men require fuel in the shape of good food. The last war showed unquestionably that the German soldiers toward the end were severely weakened by poor food, by their tough, indigestible black bread; whereas the British soldiers maintained their full vigor to the last, mainly because they had an ample supply of excellent white bread—without any bran or shorts in it—and made to a great extent from high quality Canadian wheat.

Great Britain and her allies now have command of the greater part of the world's good oil and good wheat, which is a fortunate thing for all of us.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Yugoslavia bans corn export -- Import tax cancelled by Sweden on wheat, flour and other grains -- Increasing dry weather in U.S. winter wheat belt brings complaints -- Decrease of 15 per cent in area sown to wheat in Buenos Aires compared with last year -- Fall rains in Western Canada much less than normal.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Substantial Danubian corn and barley supplies -- Corn output in Rumania large -- Fall seeding in Hungary making active progress and early sown grains up to good stand -- England fixed price of Canadian export grade flour at 22 shillings ($5.50) per 280-lb. sack.

Items of Interest

Culled from the nerve centres.

Alberta's newest industry received important recognition recently, when an order for 10,000 army blankets was placed by the Dominion government with Magrath Woollen Mills. The government of the province assisted in the purchase of raw wool just prior to a steep rise, thus enabling the factory to carry out the order.

Registration of skilled and semi-skilled men for war service will shortly be under way in all provinces. The registration is for industrial purposes. The system, when effective, will result in shortages of specific workers in any one point being filled immediately by drawing on available workers at the nearest possible place of registration. No compulsion is attached, however, workers being free to accept or refuse the positions offered.

A salary advance of one month's pay to married civil servants who enlist in the Canadian Active Service Forces will be granted by the provincial government, according to notice received by the A.C.A. Single men will receive two weeks pay. Positions are guaranteed on return. Seniority and rights are respected. Negotiations between the association and the government with a view to province keeping up superannuation payments are proceeding.

IN CANADA
It's Apple-Time
RIGHT NOW!

JUICY, perfectly-ripened Canadian apples are in . . . fresh from Canada's finest orchards! Plenty of them, too—those that normally would be exported overseas, as well as our own usual, generous supply. And—thanks to the higher minimum grade requirements—there are greater-than-average qualities of the finer, fancier, higher-grade eating apples.

So, all through this year's apple season, order liberal quantities of Canadian apples . . . for eating, cooking, entertaining . . . and for jellifying and preserving. You'll enjoy them immensely—and you'll be doing your country a SERVICE at the same time.

And remember, Canadian apples are Government Graded. Ask to see the grade-mark on the container when you buy!

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

An inventory of the research resources of Canada, planned by the national research council, is to be taken at once by the Dominion bureau of statistics.

Germany's share of Poland brings the number of Slavs in the Nazi Reich to 29,000,000, or 27.6 per cent. of the total population, it was estimated at Paris.

Iron Kettle And Andirons Belonged To Famous Novelist

When the Nova Scotia government took over as a museum the old home of Thomas Chandler Haliburton, early 19th century novelist, officials decided to comb the countryside for furniture which once graced the home of the creator of Sam Slick, the roving Yankee peddler. But they didn't expect to find relics as near the century-old house as Piper's Pool.

A workman cleaning up the grounds struck an object in the exposed bed of the pool with his pick. Investigation disclosed the iron kettle which swung from a hook in the open fire in the old Sam Slick kitchen. Further search turned up the andirons that stood in front of the fire and an iron plate.

The cauldron, as solid as when it was new, was burnished and hung over the fireplace as it hung a century ago. The andirons were also restored to their proper place in the house that has become a mecca for tourists in the Windsor part of Hants County.

The Perfect Footman

There is a story about the "red" who knocked at the door of a house in Park Lane, London—which has always stood for the quintessence of aristocracy and exclusiveness—and shouted to the footman who opened the door:

"The revolution is here" only to be met by the chilling—and class-conscious—reply:

"All revolutions must be delivered at the tradesmen's entrance."

Predicts Heavy Winter

Chief Lemme of the Yosemite Indians has undertaken to save the U.S. weather bureau a lot of trouble by predicting all at once that there will be an early fall this year and a heavy winter. He bases his prediction on the yellow-jackets, of which there are many; on the field mice of which there are lots, and on the squirrels of which there are more.

Collected Insurance

Here's a hole-in-one that paid 50 to 1. Two years ago Ellis Knowles, Sr., of Rye, N.Y., insured himself and his son, Ellis, Jr., for $100 through Lloyds of London against making a hole-in-one. They each paid a dollar-a-year premium and had thus paid in $2 when Ellis, Jr., scored his ace on the 263-yard twelfth hole at Apawamis.

To Observe Centenary

Nova Scotians Are Planning To Celebrate Interesting Event

Members of the New Glasgow, N.S., board of trade are preparing to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the first railway in Canada to use metal rails. Although the railway was opened in Pictou county in September, 1839, the centenary will be observed next year.

The railway ran between Albion Mines through New Glasgow to Granton. Part of the old road is still used for transportation of coal through the industrial districts.

Eleven years before the iron rails were laid, coal was transported along wooden rails in cars drawn by horses. Then the iron rails were put down and the locomotive Sampson was the first to be used.

The Sampson with another like it, the Albion, were kept for years in the museum of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad after being taken out of service. Several years ago they were returned to the province where they first ran.

The board of trade is planning a pageant and the unveiling of a plaque in connection with the centenary. The anniversary was to be observed this year, but because of the visit of the King and Queen it was set back a year.

Whistle While They Work

South African Factory Finds Girls Do Better Work To Music

"She Shall Have Music" is no idle tune in the South African city of Johannesburg. Girls in a large textile factory now work to popular and classical tunes. Loudspeakers have been installed in their work rooms and the girls are even allowed to sing if the spirit moves them. Light opera and Strauss waltzes have the most appeal to the workers, with classical works taking second place.

The owner of the factory says girls who whistle while they work do a better job than they did before the musical programs were started.

BEAUTIFY YOUR HOME WITH CHEERY PLANTS

Grow Bulbs, Vines in Water

Delightful what you can do with a "water garden." Graceful plants, flowering bulbs grow beautifully in water, need little care.

The luxuriant vine in our picture sprang from a lowly sweet potato—and this season of the year potatoes are just right for vine-growing.

Other root plants such as carrots and turnips make a pretty growth too. Just keep the lower third of each vegetable in water as our diagram shows.

You may have continuous bloom in your home by starting bulbs in water every few weeks. The gorgeous autumn crocus in our picture flowers within a month. Set the bulb in fibre or pebbles, let the water touch only its bottom. Follow with the paper white narcissus, the creamy Chinese sacred lily, the colorful hyacinth, other bulbs.

And before frost, cut buds of flowers, chrysanthemums in your outdoors garden. Put in water indoors, they'll bloom for weeks.

Easy, too, to grow beautiful potted plants successfully by knowing simple pointers. Our 32-page booklet tells how to raise ferns, flowering plants, bulbs, foliage plants, vines, how to make a "water garden." Gives directions for repotting, fertilizing watering.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Making Plants and Flowers Grow Indoors" to Home Flowers Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg.

Soldier's Life Better Than In 1914

Plenty To Eat And In Great Variety For The Canadian Soldier Of Present Day

While life in the Canadian army may not be "all beer and skittles," in many respects it is a great improvement over the atmosphere and conditions which prevailed in 1914, when the first expeditionary force was recruited and sent overseas.

Nowadays the medical examination is more rigid than it used to be. It is not as easy for semi-invalids or men with physical defects to get in the army as it was 25 years ago.

While the boys in the 1939 army are getting only the training necessary to render them fit as speedily as possible, they are being given plenty to eat and in great variety. There is no stinting in the commissariat department.

No one is going to be hungry, even after plenty of physical jerks, when the cook is allowed a list of comestibles totalling just under 4 1/2 pounds per soldier per diem, and that there is plenty of variety and choice can be seen from the following menu for one day in one of the Western Canadian training camps. Breakfast—Oatmeal, hot cakes and syrup, bread and butter. Dinner—Roast veal and dressing, corn, mashed potatoes, bread pudding, tea, bread and butter. Supper—Cold meat, potatoes, stewed prunes, tea, bread and butter. No wonder the boys in uniform put on weight.

As for uniform, the 1939 streamlined soldier is being put into a new khaki uniform which will eliminate entirely the necessity for polishing brass buttons and rolling puttees, the bete noir of every recruit in 1914.

More system and energy is being put into the matter of providing recreation for the recruits now than at the onset of the former great war. Not only is recreation being organized in barracks but outside, the Y.M.C.A. and other organizations are giving much thought to the provision of entertainment for the soldier.

Head Of Decoding Staff In World War Died In 1935

The London correspondent of the Ottawa Journal says:

Now it has come to another European show-down, "Room 40" will have to be reconditioned. That was the untheatrical little apartment off the Strand, where, during the last Great War, all enemy secret messages were patiently decoded by one of the most amazing staffs ever assembled. To the brilliant scholarship and indefatigable research of the queer assortment of incongruous personalities who worked in "Room 40" the Allies owed more than they ever knew.

Unhappily the presiding genius of "Room 40" is no longer available. Sir Alfred Ewing, a Scot of Scots born in Dundee in 1855, was the inspiration behind "Room 40". His distinguished academic career took him to Cambridge as engineering professor before the Admiralty got to know about him, and promptly commandeered his services.

He died four years ago, and it is a coincidence that his biography has just been published under the title "The Man of Room 40". From it we learn how this Scots university Don first took up decoding. As a young man he was cable-laying off the coast of Uruguay, and tried to decipher code messages mutilated by a careless transmitter. That accident played its part in the Great War.

SELECTED RECIPES

FRUIT BREAD

2 cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
3/4 cup sugar
2 cups Graham flour
3/4 cup candied orange peel, thinly sliced
3/4 cup broken nut meats
2 eggs, well beaten
1 1/2 cups milk
4 tablespoons melted butter or other shortening

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sugar, and sift again. Combine Graham flour, orange peel, and nuts, and add to flour mixture. Combine eggs, milk, and shortening; add to flour mixture and blend. Bake in two greased loaf pans, 7x3x2 1/2 inches, in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) one hour, or until done. Store overnight, or for several hours before slicing. To slice, use sharp knife with long blade and cut with gentle sawing motion.

CRANBERRY SHREDDED WHEAT LOAF

2 1/2 cups sifted pastry flour or 2 cups and 3 tablespoons sifted hard-wheat flour
5 teaspoons baking powder
3/4 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup granulated sugar
1 cup finely crushed Shredded Wheat
1 1/2 cup chopped raw cranberries
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1 egg
3/4 cup water
1 1/2 cup melted butter or shortening
Sift flour with baking powder, salt and sugar. Add Shredded Wheat, cranberries and walnuts. Beat egg and add water and melted butter or shortening. Add to the dry ingredients and beat to combine thoroughly. Turn into a greased and floured loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees F., about one hour. This loaf cuts better cold than hot.

Note: Chopped moist pitted dates or well drained canned cherries may replace the cranberries if desired.

Paintings Are Safe

Valuable Pictures Will Be Kept In New York Indefinitely

Because of the international situation, foreign museums which have loaned paintings to the masterpieces of art exhibition at the New York world's fair have asked exhibit directors to keep the paintings until further instructions are sent.

Cabled requests to that effect have been received from directors of the Louvre, the National Gallery of London and the Rijksmuseum of Amsterdam.

Pictures in the art exhibit from these three museums represent $2,500,000 worth of art.

Perry T. Rathbone, director of the exhibit, has informed other lenders that no shipments will be made either now or at the close of the fair, without specific directions.

"We have no objections to retaining custody of the foreign pictures as long as the owners may wish," he said.

One excellent home-produced food which Canadians seem to neglect is cheese, the consumption of which averages only 3 1/2 pounds.

Health LEAGUE of CANADA

presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

POPEYE AND HIS SPINACH

Some people can see propaganda in everything. That may be the reason for the story that Popeye is a sort of Public Relations Officer for the spinach growers. But whether the idol of the junior movie-goers has any interests to serve, or not, the fact remains that it isn't as hard to make the youngsters eat their spinach as it used to be.

Maybe too, there is something in Popeye's faith in spinach because it has been proved that this vegetable does contain iron. Though it is not advised for all people, generally speaking, spinach has high nutritive values.

Spinach is no new discovery and in the old days there were doctors who prescribed it for many things—though their theories are no longer held, in the light of scientific knowledge. Doubtless imported into Europe at the time of the Crusades, spinach was already well-known during the Renaissance. In the 18th Century it was regularly hawked in the streets of London. In those days, the plant was prepared by chopping it up, boiling it and making it into balls, the liquid being squeezed out with the hands. Then it was mixed with butter, oil or vinegar and thus prepared was considered a delicacy. To-day the usual method of home preparation is boiling it whole and retaining as much of the water as feasible so as to be eaten with butter, pepper and salt. Most canned spinach, of course, is chopped up.

In the Eleventh Century, Arabian doctors prescribed spinach for many conditions especially of the throat and the chest. Two centuries later, spinach enjoyed a period of great favor as a laxative and intestinal cleanser. To-day it is known that spinach has a high iron content. It also contains small quantities of organic salts of potash and lime and is relatively rich in sugar. Its nutritive value, superior to that in most green vegetables, makes it important in anaemia, convalescence and debilitating diseases. This tonic property is increased by its richness in chlorophyll, the green coloring matter of vegetable life which is a powerful agent in the treatment of blood poverty. Increasing the bulk of the products of digestion, it is laxative.

While spinach, therefore, is healthful food for most people, it is not advised for arthritis, gouty rheumatics or those with gravel, kidney or bladder stone.

THE RIVER OF SKULLS

"They're wonderful looking dogs, Alan," she agreed, with a swift glance at the Ungavas, but her eyes could not long leave the tall figure of the man; they lingered on the dark, crisp hair, the bold features and the laughing deep-set eyes.

"Better not try to get acquainted too quickly, eh. Shot?" He seized an ear of the slate-gray who stopped in his romping to nuzzle Alan's head. "Where's John?"

"Chopping wood, he'll be back for lunch."

"Lunch? Say, Heather, I'm starved," said the traveller. "I ate a bite at daylight and have been crossing these hills all the morning."

"You poor man! Come over and I'll feed you!"

Later as the savory odors of corn bread, caribou and tea filled the cabin, the fierce yelping of the Ungavas brought Alan on a run to the clearing.

"Call off your dogs! By the Lord Harry, Alan Cameron, you're a partner after my own heart! Look at those pups! Welcome back, my lad!" The great voice of John McCord boomed at Alan as he quieted the younger dogs.

"Alan, you're good for sore eyes, lad! I've been worried about you!" Holding the smiling Cameron at arms' length, the giant tested the other's arms and shoulders. "Fit to fight for a king's ransom, boy! Tough as a tamarack! My, but I'm glad to see you back!"

"There's your dogs," grinned Alan, "straight from the Nastapokas. Like 'em?"

"Like 'em?" cried the delighted McCord. "They're beauties! How old?"

"About fourteen months. They'll be full grown, almost, by spring."

"Coat and bone and size, they've got everything, Alan! Now you and I own the world!"

Alan searched the blue eyes of the older man. Could it be true that John McCord was a murderer—a man who would kill his wife? He could not believe it.

"You've forgotten one thing, John," he finally said.

"One thing—what d'you mean?"

"The police!"

McCord's brows knotted beneath the gashed forehead. "Police? What have the police to do with us?"

The big man looked hard at the other. "What's on your mind, boy? You haven't been followed from Fort George? They don't know I'm here?"

Alan nodded. "That's just it. The police know!"

McCord thrust his puzzled face close to Alan's. "The police? You mean police at Fort George?"

"Yes."

"What in thunder are they doing there?"

"Looking for—you."

"For me?" The blond giant threw back his head and roared as Alan watched with sober face. "You serious? What—what's all this mystery? I don't understand."

"John," said Alan, "when I was at the Revillon Freres I dropped a bill you gave me from my tobacco bag. I've—I've been a poor partner to put your trust in."

"Well, suppose you did, you didn't tell anyone where you got it?"

"No, but the police saw it."

The big man scratched his head, then turned an uncomprehending look on the other. "You say there are police at Fort George looking for me? What am I wanted for?"

"Murder."

Alan watched the other's eyes as a lynx watches a wool mouse. But a look of blank amazement was their sole expression. "Who've I murdered?"

"That's why I wanted to keep it from Heather. They say at Fort George that you killed your wife."

McCord's face suddenly flushed under the bronze. Then his eyes hardened to ice-blue as he sucked in a deep breath. "Murdered—my wife?"

He took a step and turned, running his fingers through his thick hair. "She's dead—then—murdered?"

Alan waited as his friend paced to and fro deep in thought. This was not the way a man would act who had been suddenly told that the police wanted him for crime. Rather, McCord seemed mystified, puzzled.

"Where's Noel?" McCord suddenly demanded, stopping his pacing.

"I left him with the police in the headwater country of the Mad River. I slipped them and travelled overland with the dogs."

John McCord scowled into Alan's sombre face. "The police came with you up river?"

Alan nodded. Then, drawing McCord back beyond earshot of the cabin, he swiftly related what had happened on his trip to Fort George. As he talked, the face of the older man slowly changed from a picture of frank amazement to one of stark rage.

"Before I begin, I want to ask you a question," said McCord, swallowing hard, as he fought for self-control. "Did you believe their story that I killed my wife?"

"That was not the question—whether you killed your wife," retorted Alan. "You had saved my life. You were here with Heather, alone, deserted by your Indians. I had given you my promise to come back. That was enough."

McCord's blue eyes lit with satisfaction. "You were going to keep your word whether it was with a wife-killer or not, eh?"

"I wouldn't think about it. There was Heather, along with you, needing help. You had saved my life. It was enough."

"Partner, give me your hand." The two men gripped hands as their eyes unwaveringly met.

"I told you I knew a man when I saw one," continued McCord quietly. "You've proved your mettle."

"We ought to keep this from Heather—if we can." Alan's gray eyes probed the giant's face as he went on. "Does she know—about—what happened? What brought the police—here?"

"Did you believe their stories that I killed my wife?"

McCord stood with hands on hips, his bold features knotted in a scowl. Slowly he shook his head. "No, she does not know, Alan. Poor kid, she does not know." Then he took the other's arm. "You're hungry, so am I! We'll go in and eat. Later we'll take the net up to the island and set it. We've got four big dogs to feed, now. Then I'll tell you a story."

CHAPTER VII

It was a happy girl who repeatedly filled the plates of the two hungry men with caribou ribs, corn bread and beans while Alan told of his trip up the coast in search of the dogs. Of Fort George he spoke little.

"It was great luck, John, getting pure Ungavas. There's no better strain in the north. We've got a team that will take a thousand pounds, next spring, on the crust."

"Alan," said the giant, leaning across the table, a smoldering flame of triumph in his blue eyes, "with those dogs to get out with, a year from this winter, we'll own the world! I tell you, lad! We'll own the world!"

"Own the world?" Alan's dark brows lifted.

"When we have a good talk, you'll understand," assured McCord. "Heather, Alan and I are going to set the net at the island. We need fish for the dogs."

The girl's fine brows drew together as she looked her disappointment. "Why can't I go, too, dad? You'll take Alan away and stay till supper."

"You'll have plenty of chance to see him later. We've got some plans to talk over now."

Alan followed McCord down to the canoe wondering if the story he was about to hear would shake his faith in the man he had promised to accompany into the blue tundra that rolled away into the north. But what did it matter? He was in the same pass as John McCord. By tricking and deserting the police, he, also, had become a hunted man—an outlaw.

They paddled up to the island and set the gill-net in the thoroughfare on the side of the nearest shore, where the fish travelled at night. Then, lighting their pipes the two sat down on two small boulders facing each other.

"First I want to know about the police and Noel and how you got away with the dogs," said McCord.

"I told them we had met you in the headwater lakes of the Mad River. So Noel and I took them there. We always camped with water between us to keep the dogs apart. Four— the for light, country. And H

A Famous Song

Rule 'Britannia First Presented In England 200 Years Ago

Next year is the two hundredth anniversary of the first public presentation of "Rule Britannia," the second line of whose chorus, "Britannia rule the waves," is so often mis-sung. This song was the finale of the masque "Alfred," music by Dr. Thomas Augustine Arne, libretto by Mallet and Thomson, which was presented in honor of the accession of George I. Arne was one of many instances where geniuses have followed their natural bent despite parental opposition; he received his musical education clandestinely, as his father was bitterly opposed. He became composer to Drury Lane theatre and was the first to introduce female voices into oratorio choruses.—Toronto Star.

Blind Soldier In Halifax Hospital Keeps Busy And Cheerful Should you be feeling discouraged or disgruntled think of Walter H. Callow.

Mr. Callow is a patient in Camp Hill Hospital, Halifax. Injured in an R.F.C. plane crash in 1917, since 1930 he has been completely incapacitated by spinal trouble and arthritis. He lies constantly in one position. He cannot use his hands. He is blind. Eight years ago, his wife died, leaving a young daughter to be cared for.

Mr. Callow has a hobby. By radio he keeps himself posted on current happenings, and composes verse to cheer up his friends. He sells some of his poetry, too.

His nurse tells us that "the spirit and courage of this patient is a source of inspiration to all who have the privilege of his acquaintance."
